Tips for Creating Inclusion for Any Community Resource

STEP ONE:

- Begin by identifying your child's likes and preferences.
- What is their vision for a perfect summer?
- Help your child brainstorm a list of ideas.
- Write a list of your child's strengths, getting input from others who know your child well. Share this list with your child, and consider these strengths in your brainstorming.

STEP TWO:

- Make a list of places in your community that offer programs that align with your child's vision for the summer. Don't limit yourself to those that only offer special needs programs.
- Ask around for others that might know of possibilities: neighbors, teachers, rec centers, tourism bureaus, non-profit organizations, school districts, community colleges, social workers and provider agencies.

STEP THREE:

Define what is important TO your child:

- Being with or making friends
- Sports
- Arts
- Being outdoors
- Staying indoors

Define what is important FOR your child:

- Physical Activity
- Continuity and structure
- Full-time, part-time, or occasional care
- Trained staff
- Constant supervision

Consider the specific needs of your child:

- Medical needs
- Assistance with diapering or hygiene
- Safety
- Working on specific skills
- Continuity in schedule

STEP FOUR:

Gather information on the potential places of interest on your list.

- Call the organizations, businesses, or facilities that align with your child's vision and meet their needs.
- Share your child's vision and strengths
- Share 2-3 specific needs that will need to be accommodated for your child to participate

Offer to volunteer support that can help your child be successful. This might include things like training staff on how best to interact with your child, staying nearby or even at the location during your child's participation, providing necessary snacks or drinks for dietary restrictions or needs.

Many programs accommodate special needs when they can; do not assume your child can't go just because a special/adaptive program isn't necessarily offered. If it sounds like something your child will enjoy, ASK! Many of these places want to offer inclusive environments.

ADDITIONAL TIPS AND CONSIDERATIONS:

- Consider your child's safety needs.
- Beware of overscheduling: do you use summer to to schedule extra therapy or medical appointments?
- Use your child's IEP or 504 plan to provide a starting point for what accommodations might be needed in order for your child to participate. For instance, will your child be more successful in small groups or with reduced expectations. Will they need high repetition when learning new skills? What forms of prompting might be needed (give specific words or gestures to use).
